ACADEMY PROFESSORSHIP INDONESIA

- Social Sciences –
Call for Nominations

Amsterdam/Jakarta, 31 March 2015

Dear Sir, Madam,

The Academy Professorship Indonesia (API) is the jewel in the crown of the scientific and scholarly cooperation between Indonesia and the Netherlands. This programme of rotating professorships is a joint initiative by the Indonesian and Dutch Academies of Arts and Sciences, API and KNAW.

The Academy Professorship Indonesia was officially launched in February 2007 in Yogyakarta with the presentation of the first professorship in the field of Social Sciences and Humanities, hosted by the Gadjah Mada University (2007-2010) and the University of Indonesia (2010-2012). The success of this first API led KNAW-API to decide expanding the programme to the field of Life Sciences. This second API, hosted by Hasanuddin University, started in 2012 and is running until 2016. The next two professorships will start in 2015 and will be in Natural Sciences and Social Sciences, respectively.

The API-KNAW selection committee invites members of relevant departments/commissions of KNAW and API, deans of faculties of Social Sciences of universities in Indonesia and the Netherlands, and prominent international scientists to nominate eligible Indonesian candidates to hold this chair in the field of Social Sciences for a minimum period of three years.

Deadline for nomination: 1 May 2015
